GEN'L DEWETT IS NOW DEAD

BLOEMFONTEIN, Feb. 5.—General Christian Dewett, commander-in-chief of the Boer forces in 1889, died at his home in Dewetsdorp on Friday. He served in the first Anglo-Boer war of 1880-81 and on the outbreak of the second war in 1899 was again an obscure command. He, however, succeeded General Cronje on the latter's surrender and displayed considerable strategical ability in his operations against the British. After the outbreak of the world war, Dewett headed a rebellion in the Orange Free State, but his forces surrendered to General Louis Botha.

Dog Team Race

BERLIN, New Hampshire, Feb. 5.—Arthur Walden, of Wonalancet, an American, driving a team of eskimo dogs, to-day won the 120 mile international dog team race.

Premier Peer of Ireland Dead

EDINBURGH, Feb. 5.—Maurice Fitzgerald, Duke of Leinster, Premier Peer of Ireland, is dead. Being unmarried, his heir is his brother, Lord Edward Fitzgerald, who married May Etheridge, musical comedy actress, in 1913.

Messrs. A. Hearn and J. Williams of Bay Bulls arrived in the city by the Portia yesterday.

INFANT EARL FIGHTS IN COURT TO REGAIN $3,000,000 ESTATE

By MILTON BRONNER.
LONDON, Jan. 16.—Mrs. Eleanor Brownlee, whose spectacular gains on British race tracks have made her name well known in society here, will be the central figure in the most spectacular trial of recent years.
The contest involves the $3,000,000 estate of the late Earl of Shrewsbury, the bulk of which was left to Mrs. Brownlee. The contestant is the infant Earl of Shrewsbury.
Mrs. Brownlee came to England from the Argentine. She began immediately to make large sums by clever race track plays.
Her most spectacular success was the purchase of a horse called Shoemaker. The horse was lame. Her friends ridiculed the purchase.
But Shoemaker's lameness healed and he won his mistress $25,000.
Mrs. Brownlee's fondness for horse racing led to her acquaintance with the Earl of Shrewsbury. When the earl died he left her his whole estate save a few small bequests.
The infant earl, in his contest, declares the old earl was incapable of managing his affairs and that Mrs. Brownlee took advantage of his mental state.
Mrs. Brownlee denies all this. Meanwhile the executor of the will is pressing to have it probated.

NEW POPE IS CARD. RATTI

Takes Name of Pius XI.

ROME, Feb. 6.—Cardinal Achille Ratti, Archbishop of Milan, was proclaimed elected Pope in succession to late Benedict XV. this morning. He has taken the name of Pius XI. Thousands waiting in front of St. Peter's for the wisp of smoke which would tell of the election of the new Pope or the failure of the Sacred College to reach a decision, gave a mighty shout at 11.33 o'clock when a wisp of smoke came from the chimney leading from Sistine Chapel. It was then known that the Catholic Church had once more a duly elected Pontiff.

Cardinal Ratti was born in a small town just outside Milan, and educated at Milan and Rome. He is now 65 years old. He was Prefect of the Ambrosian Library in Milan, and later Prefect of the Vatican Library. During the war he was appointed Nunco to Poland and did good work in that connection. He was brought back and made Archbishop of Milan, and Cardinal in June 1921, thus reaching the highest post in the Roman Catholic Church seven months after his appointment as a Cardinal. A recent message noted that Cardinal Ratti was of Cardinal Gasparri's Pene Party or group who advocated a continuance of Benedict's policy of closer relations with the Italian Government. It would seem that it required either four or five ballots before a choice was made, the newly elected Pope having to get two-thirds of the vote cast.

Referring to the matter of the election of a successor to Pope Benedict the New York Times of Jan. 27, said: "The prophecy is that Cardinal Ratti, Archbishop of Milan, is the most prominent and likely candidate. He discharged delicate duties successfully in Poland when the Polish question became acute and was rewarded with his Cardinal's hat for his services. The Archbishop of Milan is the most important in all Italy, that being a great industrial centre. The Archbishop of Milan is one versed in political and social problems and is big politically and physically. He has liberal tendencies, the not as pronounced as those of Cardinal Maril, Archbishop of Pisa. He enjoys a great reputation for Liberalism and this will be likely to advance the cause of Conciliation."

PUBLIC NOTICE

Under and by virtue of the provisions contained in Sec. 3, Chapter 20 of the Consolidated Statutes, 3rd Series entitled "The Census," notice is hereby given that a Court of Revision, to examine and review the Returns of the Enumerators of the Census for the District of St. John's East and West, will open in the Central District Court Room, St. John's, on Thursday, the 9th day of February, instant, from 2.30 p.m. to 4 p.m. Such examination and revision will continue each lawful day at the same hour until further notice.

Dated at St. John's this 2nd day of February, A.D. 1922.

Pope's Private Treasury Contained $140,000.00 A DAY IN HIS LIFE

WHERE HIS HOLINESS POPE BENEDICT XV. RESTS

The Crypt of the Vatican, under St. Peter's Basilica where Pope Benedict XV. was buried between Queen Christiana of Sweden and Pope Pius X.

WEPT WHEN ELECTED POPE.

One of the smallest men physically ever elected to the chair of St. Peter, the late Pope Benedict XV. never expected to be thus honored by the Sacred College, and is said to have wept when apprised of his election. He would have preferred, he said, to remain a simple priest, or, at most Cardinal and Archbishop of Bologna.

A DAY IN BENEDICT'S LIFE.

Describing a typical day in the life of Pope Benedict XV. a recent writer said:—

"The papal day opens at 5, when His Holiness rises and says mass. At 7 he says another mass and then has breakfast of black coffee and dry bread. The morning is devoted to work and at noon comes lunch of olives, bread, polenta or rice, vegetables, and a glass of light 'vino di pasto.' His Holiness seldom smokes. After a siesta comes a walk or drive in the Vatican grounds. Then the reception of visitors, more work, and a light evening meal similar to that taken at midday. The present Pope holds particularly to the reception of visitors.

"He once gave a French girl, who wanted to become a nun, but could not because of tuberculosis, a full half hour's consolation and advice, and similar visitors stream into the Vatican all day long. His Holiness returns to his desk at seven in the evening and does not leave it till 11 when he repairs to bed—still using the small room in which so many of his predecessors have breathed their last—but not before embarking upon a pilgrimage as unusual as it is dramatic. Almost every night Benedict XV. walks across into St. Peter's and goes down into the vault where lie the remains of Pius X. At the side of the tomb he prays for a full ten minutes, then retreats as silently and inconspicuously as he came.

"So the days succeed the days and the months, the months and the years, he years within the precincts of the papal domain. It is hardly a life calculated to lengthen or brighten one's span. The fact of having to stay in Rome throughout the summer months—than which there are few more trying climatic experiences—alone operates against robustness. Added to this is the terrible monotony of life in the room of Peter. Pope Benedict has few intimate friends and no woman friend except his sister, who visits the Vatican almost every day. The sovereign Pontiff looks forward to these visits more than anything else in the daily round."

BENEDICT'S TOMB

Benedict's tomb will face that in which Pope Pius VI. lies; it adjoins that of Queen Christine of Sweden, who abdicated from the Throne in 1654, and settled in Rome, where she died in 1689. Fully a million people have filed past the catafalque in St. Peter's to view the body of the late

Pope, and while the great procession has been orderly its very vastness has occasioned strenuous labors on the part of gendarmes and guards for the stream moved slowly amid scenes of grief and mourning.

HIS PRIVATE TREASURY

An inventory of the moneys found in Benedict's private treasury disclosed the fact that the Pope had only about 700,000 lire (normally less than $140,000), when from two to three million lire was expected.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Michael Collins' tate to appeal for help not only to suggestion to Premier Craig of Ulster for a conference of the representatives of the whole of Ireland, in to drive our people unwillingly to adopt a common policy and frame a constitution, is the main outcome of the new deadlock in the Irish situation, but it is too soon to indicate whether any important development is likely to come from it. ### Educative Influence The Labor Party Arms Conference

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The greatest accomplishment of the Armament Conference here has been its educative influence. This is the opinion of Sir Robert Borden, the Canadian delegate, expressed to the Canadian Press to-day. While the practical results have been notable, they are, Sir Robert said, of "less vital significance than the educative influence such conference is bound to exercise upon the participating nations." Canada and the United States were both rejoicing to-day that their 4,000 miles of inter-boundary was unarmed, Sir Robert said. Civilizations in the past rose and fell and though we assumed our own stable, there was no guarantee of this. In fact the recent war had shown that we were possessed of instruments of incredible devastating power. To preserve the progress for which mankind has painfully toiled and assure a vaster advance along the road of freedom, justice and equal opportunity, we must find some efficient means by which the public right shall be enthroned and the peace of the world maintained. The habit of direct international consultation must be formed and this has been one of the great lessons of the recent conference, said

Mr. Robert. From the first to the last the spirit has been admirable as the results have been memorable.

The Labor Party

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Charles Jesson, member of parliament and an old Trade Union official, to-day severed his connection with the Labor Party, declaring it consisted of four groups, each preaching a philosophy which, if successful would destroy the other three. The Trade Union Congress group had been committed to a policy of nationalizing everything, but the Co-operative Trading Group declared nationalization must not be applied to them. Another group told the workers that all they need worry about was higher wages and shorter hours and going slow to give other fellows a job. Workers should realize, Mr. Jesson added, that if labor saving machinery was properly used enough wealth could be produced to allow the workers two months' holidays every year and six-hour working days.

ROME, Feb. 5.—To-day's balloting for a new Pope was unsuccessful. Ballots were taken in the morning and again in the afternoon, black smoke issuing from the chimney of the Sistine Chapel indicated.

CHAPTER XIX.

Rich Strikes Out.

Rich longed to make him measure his length again in the dust for this insult; but it was a principle with him never to be belligerent except in cases of necessity.

"Such a speech is worthy of you," he replied with well-pointed sarcasm, "but I warn you, once for all, that if you ever molest Miss Hunting again, you shall suffer for it to the extent of the law."

"I've heard bluster before now," growled Crouch, stealthily advancing toward Rich, his eye blazing hatred and malignity, "but it'll take more'n a whipper-snapper like you to frighten a man of my size."

"Stand back," Rich commanded, with quiet authority, for he saw that the bully was watching an opportunity to spring upon him unawares. "Ha! ha!" he laughed, roughly, "you can knock a man down from behind, and think you've done a brave thing; but when it comes to a square hand-to-hand fight, your pluck oozes out. How do you like that? Ah!—"

He had made a dive at Rich, aiming a fierce blow at his chest but our hero, trained to athletic sports and scientific boxing at college, ward off the sledge-hammer fists with his left hand and arm, while with his right he struck out from the shoulder with almost lightning rapidity, hitting his opponent a smashing blow under his left ear, which had brought that cry of surprise and pain from him and following it up with another and yet another upon his nose and chin, he sent him, reeling like a drunken man, against a stone post, where he doubled up like a jack knife, and lay half-stunned for several moments.

Rich stood quietly by, watching him a trifle anxiously, for he had no wish to do him any serious injury—he had only hoped to give him a wholesome lesson.

But evidently he was not harmed beyond a few bruises, for he soon picked himself up again, and slunk away like a whipped dog, growling and muttering threats of vengeance.

Rich walked up and down the side walk, thankful that it had all passed so quickly as not to attract attention, for he had no desire for a public scandal, and he had not taken but two or three turns when Annie Hunting made her appearance again.

He met her at the foot of the marble steps.

"Has he gone?" she asked, glancing anxiously about.

"Yes, he has been gone some minutes," Rich replied, reassuringly, "and now I intend to take you safely to your own door, and see that nothing further transpires to frighten you."

He drew her small hand within his arm, with a feeling almost of proprietorship in her, while her low-spoken but grateful "thank you," told him that her frightened heart was set entirely at rest by his assurance of protection.

"Miss Hunting," he began, after a moment, "I want to exact a promise from you, that you will not go out alone after dark any more."

"I wish I was not obliged to, Mr. Waldemar," she answered, "but I cannot always regulate my actions by my wishes. Many times I am obliged to take work home to finish, as in this case, and when it is completed carry it to the parties to whom it belongs."

"I see," Rich responded, thoughtfully. "But, at least," he added, "you can promise this much, that when you are detained late, or have to go upon these nightly errands, you will either ask some one to go with you or take a car. I fear that you may meet with even worse persecution than that from which I delivered you to-night. I believe that man is a black-hearted rascal, and you must be protected in some way from him."

"You are very kind," Annie Hunting replied, "and I am very grateful for all that you have done for my comfort and safety. I will cheerfully make the promise you desire—in deed, I feel that it will be a necessary precaution."

Then he began to talk of other things, to draw her mind from her recent unpleasant experience.

Among other things, he asked her regarding her duties in the sewing-room—if they were particularly laborious or unpleasant.

"One must not quarrel with one's bread and butter, Mr. Waldemar," she said, somewhat sadly. "I cannot say that my life is an agreeable one, but it is not nearly so hard as that of some others that I know. I have often wished, however, that I could get into some quiet household as family seamstress, and then I should escape many annoyances to which I am now subjected."

"Surely there are many such places in the city!" Rich said, eagerly, thinking such a situation would be far better for her.

"Doubtless there are, if one could only know about them," she returned, with a sigh.

A sudden bright thought came to Rich.

"If I could secure such a position for you, would you accept it?" he asked.

"I should be only too glad to do so, Mr. Waldemar, for it would at least insure me protection against such annoyances as I have suffered to-night."

"I may not be able to do anything for you in that way," Rich continued.

ed, "but I have some friends who, I think, might know of such a place. They are about going away for a few weeks, but if you will take care of number one until their return, I believe they will be able to help you to something. In fact, I may as well tell you, that they are the Campbells. The very people to whose house you have been to-night."

"Mrs. and Miss Campbell!" said Annie, quickly. "They are very nice; Mrs. Campbell is always so considerate, and her daughter has something kind to say whenever I see her. I have worked upon a good many garments for them."

"Yes, they are very amiable people," Rich returned, while in his mind he was contrasting Miss Campbell's brilliant, luxurious life with that of this toiling sewing girl, "and I really believe they would be interested for you if I should speak to them of you."

"You are very good, Mr. Waldemar," Annie said, and there was a suspicion of tears in her voice, "and—I want to thank you, too, for those cheering little blossoms which you left at my door for me a short time ago."

"O," replied Rich, with a sudden heart-throb, "I was buying some flowers one day for my aunt to wear to a dinner-party, when I saw those sweet little Scotch roses, and—I could not resist sending them to you. You were not offended? May I send you some more?—you will not consider me presuming if I do?" he asked, eagerly, though somewhat incoherently.

"How could I be offended at such a kind remembrance?" she said, half reproachfully. "They made me think of home and papa, too, for we had a variety of Scotch roses in which he used to take a good deal of pride; he dearly loved all kinds of flowers."

"Where was your home, Miss Hunting, before you came to New York to live?" Rich inquired.

"In Brooklyn."

"So near as that! and have you no friends or relations there who could care for you?"

"No—no one who would wish to be burdened with a penniless orphan. My mamma was an orphan when papa married her; she had some distant relations, somewhere in the country, but they were simple people who seldom left home, and I never knew anything about them excepting by hearsay. Papa was an only child, of Scotch descent, and his parents died in Scotland, years ago; so when he was taken there was no one left to care for me."

Involuntarily Rich's arm tightened over the little hand lying upon it; it moved him strangely to hear her speak so pathetically of her loneliness.

"And did he—excuse me if I am too free—could he make no provision for you when he died?" he asked.

"How strange!" Rich said, at once suspecting trickery. "But, could your guardian do nothing better than to allow you to come into this great city and its dangers?"

"He took me to his home for a little while; but he had quite a family, and somehow I felt as if I was in the way, so I came to New York one day and made arrangements to take care of myself."

By this time they had reached her home, and Rich did not feel at liberty to prolong the conversation. Yet he lingered while bidding her good-

"Why, Mr. Waldemar," she exclaimed, with a silvery little laugh, "you made me forget all about him!" "Thank you, I wish I could exercise all your troubles as easily," Rich said, in a low, earnest tone.

With another pressure of that small hand, Rich said his final "good-night" and went his way.

Billiard Tourney.

THE MASONS VICTORIOUS.

The concluding games in the Billiard Tournament were played at the City Club on Saturday night. That between A. Williams (City) and G. Phillips (Masonic) was won by the former by 17 points. In the former game Phillips was the victor by 94 points.

The breaks were:
Phillips:—11, 12, 13, 13, 13, 10, 15
Williams:—10, 12, 15, 11, 10, 10.

The final game between W. Martin (Masonic) and C. Taylor (City), was a walk-over for the former, who defeated his opponent by 137 points. Martin played well and scored quickly. In the first ten minutes he made 105 points while his opponent only scored 7, and altogether the game only occupied forty minutes. Martin holds the time record for the series, also the record for the number of points scored over his opponent, thus becoming the winners of the cup put up by the Masonic Club. In the former game he also won over his opponent, defeating him 81 points.

The breaks in the last game were:
Martin:—47, 10, 15, 10, 12, 10, 10, 12, 15, 19, 11, 15.

Taylor:—15.
As a result of the tournament the Masonic players are winners by 1040 points. At the Masonic Club they won 16 out of the 20 games, and defeated the City Club players by 999 points. In the second round, which was decidedly the more interesting each Club won ten games, but the Masonic had a margin of 41 points in their favour. It is understood the winners are being entertained at the City Club rooms on to-morrow night.

MISS MARY MORRIS LEAVES FOR LOS ANGELES

Miss Mary Morris, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Morris, leaves by the next Rosalind for California, where she will be married to Mr. F. Regis Burke, of St. Jacques. She will be the guest of the Hon. Donald and Mrs. Morrison from whose home at Hollywood, Los Angeles, the wedding will take place during the second week in March. Mr. Burke left here some three months ago and has secured a very lucrative position with the Citizens' Savings & Trust Company Bank, Los Angeles, where he intends to make his home.—COM.

Miss Morris will be remembered by many as one of the first V. A. D. nurses to volunteer from Newfoundland for three years' service. It was while on a vacation here that the Spanish influenza epidemic broke out and she immediately gave her services as a nurse in Grenfell Hall, putting in six weeks' hard work there. It was while nursing that she met her fiancé, Mr. Burke, a cousin of Dr. V. P. Burke, deputy minister of education.

The "Belaguered"

The Belaguered is the title of a fine dramatic chorus composed by Sir Arthur S. Sullivan. It is the first concerted piece that will be sung by the St. John's Octette at the College Hall on Thursday night next.

Few composers of recent times have conferred such wholesome pleasure on the world than Sullivan has done. His name is more widely known in connection with the Comic Operas of Gilbert and Sullivan fame, but, apart from that, his unique success as the composer of lovely songs, anthems and choruses has entitled him to a high place in the world of music.

Another of his compositions, "The Long Day Closes" will also be rendered at this concert, by special request. At the last Octette concert, the rendition of this beautiful part-song was greeted with thunderous applause by an enthusiastic and delighted audience.

Tickets for Thursday night's concert may be booked at Mr. F. V. Chesman's on Water Street.

AFTER BREAKS IN LOTTERY LAW

St. John's, N.F.L.D., February 14th, 1922.

The Editor,
The Advocate,
City.

Dear Sir:—You would greatly oblige me by publishing this letter and the attached correspondence. The reasons for my action with regard to lotteries are set forth in my letter to the Attorney General. I have no objections to lotteries as such and before the law was altered at the last session of the Legislature I often broke it. My conscience never troubles me when I break a foolish, unreasonable, or fanatical law. On the other hand, when a law is reasonable and does not work a real hardship I am so constituted that I cannot rest inactive when the law is broken in my sight. The police records will show that I have openly interfered on the side of law and order. My upbringing was such as to make me both law-abiding and liberty-loving.

If these bakers to whom I have called the attention of the authorities wish to give prizes they can do so in the same way as the Imperial Tobacco Company. Morally speaking, I do not suppose there is much difference between the two methods, since both appeal to the desire of getting something for nothing. Legally, however, the method of distributing prizes followed by the Tobacco Company is not a lottery, because everyone receives the same value for his money. If the bakers would follow that plan and put coupons in their bread—so many being worth a cake or another loaf they would be within the law, provided that every coupon is of the same value. It might be remembered, however, that the coupon method can be as easily developed into a "skin game" as can the lottery.

I intend to invest a few dollars in sweepstakes this year as usual. I shall, however, want to be satisfied that the lotteries in which I take part are duly licensed by the Magistrate in accordance with the law.

Yours truly,
WARWICK SMITH.

St. John's, Nfld.,
Jan. 30th, 1922.

Hon. W. R. Warren, K.C.,
H. M. Attorney General.
Sir,—I have the honour officially to call your attention to an advertisement that appears on the front page of the "Daily News" of this morning's issue and which bears the name of J. F. Lynch. As you are aware this constitutes a breach of the law relating to Lotteries. I understand that a similar lottery is being run by Mr. B. McGuire. Perhaps it would be well if you write these people, and also the newspapers which insert advertisements and newspaper items relating to unlawful lotteries, that this must be put a stop to in the future. I call your attention to this as you may not have noticed it.

My reasons for writing you are as follows. The present law relating to Lotteries gives those who desire to take part in them every opportunity to do so. If it is desired that lotteries should be commercialized, the law should first be altered. The second reason I have is to show that a liberal law relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors could also be enforced and that one person at least would not be afraid to enforce it. I consider the Lottery laws reasonable enough. When the liquor laws are as reasonable, they, too, shall have my hearty support.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Yours obedient Servant,
WARWICK SMITH.

Sir,—I am in receipt of your communication of the 30th instant with reference to an advertisement which appears on the front page of the "Daily News," bearing the name of J. F. Lynch.

I am having an enquiry made into the matter, and, if there is a breach of the law relating to lotteries, it will be dealt with.

I have, &c.,
W. R. WARREN,
Minister of Justice.

THE CURLER'S MEMORIAL DAY, FEBRUARY 15TH.

Wednesday—First Whole Holiday—Morning, Afternoon and Night

Leat Col. Nangle, always the Boys' friend, visited the Curling Rink Saturday night and was accorded what we all know down there as a "real right royal welcome." He told his story and the object of his visit, viz., the raising of a monument in commemoration of "Our Boys" who did their duty in the Great War. The Curlers did not require any coaxing. The Secretary said "we will take up the torch with you Father Nangle" and in a minute a quarter of beer was offered, then a second quarter came along and then the following donations were offered for the Grand Auction that will take place on the night of the whole holiday, commencing at 9 o'clock, viz: 2 quarters of Beef, 2 pairs Geese, 2 pairs of Ducks, Turkeys, 2 sides of Mutton, 2 hris. of Pork, a $50.00 Victory Bond 1 brl. Horring, 2 boxes Apples, 2 box Cigars, 1 case Soap, 1 Gramophone, 1 brl. Lime, Thermos Bottle, case Pipes, Troutling Outfit (hat coat and leggings), several parcels.

These items were offered inside of 15 minutes. The donors and items will be duly posted in the Club Room. Truly a whirlwind campaign in which all curlers are interested. All Curlers are asked to be on the committee and we will meet every night until it is over (only 9 days to go).

The C.C.C. Band, through the courtesy of Lt. Col. Conroy, will be present in the afternoon and the C. L.B.C. Band through the courtesy of Lt. Col. Goodridge will be with us at night. The Secretary did not have time to get in communication with Captain Charles Peet of the Methodist Guards' Band, but all feel certain that the Guards' Band will take pleasure in opening "The Curlers' Memorial Day" for the gallant heroes.

The Ladies' Curling Club will be immediately approached as without the ladies nothing can properly succeed. Look what they did last year. Watch the lady curlers this year when they get down to business. A special programme for the day will be arranged commencing at 9 o'clock in the morning and continue all through the day. Any donations by phone or otherwise will be appreciated by the Committee—just 'phone Secretary Salter. In the meantime "Be up and don't be short."

The eight Curling Caps will be played for to-night, commencing at 7 o'clock and continuing right through so that the result will be known after the second session, about 11 o'clock. The eight leading men in each division, or thirty-two in all,

WEDDING BELLS

ALVORD-WATSON

A wedding of interest in Norfolk and Washington took place Saturday afternoon, December 31, when Miss Kathryn McLean Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Furman Watson, of Virginia Beach, formerly of Baltimore, became the bride of Mr. Ellsworth Chapman Alvord, of Washington. The marriage was solemnized at 5 o'clock in the afternoon in Galilee Episcopal Church, at Virginia Beach, the Rev. William E. Callender officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful gown of duchesse satin trimmed in rose point lace, and with a train of Brussels lace. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

The groom, who served overseas as a first lieutenant with the 23rd Field Artillery and who is a graduate of Wisconsin University and of the school of law of Columbia University New York city, is with the legislative drafting service of the Senate.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvord are making their home in Washington.—Norfolk Ledger Despatch.

J. B. Yeates Dead

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—John Butler Yeates, 82, Irish painter and writer, and father of William B. Yeates, poet, is dead at his home here. He had been a resident of this country twelve years.

Injured On South Side

Harry Johnson, a resident of Signal Hill, and a worker on Bowring's South Side premises, was seriously injured this morning and had to be taken to hospital. It was thought that his leg was broken, but up to one o'clock the hospital could not say whether this was so or not. Mr. Johnson was taken to the hospital on an ordinary sled, and suffered great pain in the process.

THE KNOCKERS

February 6th, 1922.

Editor Evening Advocate,
City.

Dear Sir,—Saturday's "Telegram" contained an article on "Wayagamack" Pulp and Paper Company, saying their stock in 1921 fell from $89.00 per share to $36.00, causing a stock market loss of over $2,000,000, and stating if the Humber proposition turned out the same, Newfoundland would be in a nice mess if the Bonds were guaranteed.

There was nothing in the issue referred to regarding "Wayagamack". This issue contained a letter signed "Progress" showing the splendid record of the Saguenay River Pulp and Paper Company.

I have also read articles in your paper showing the millions of dollars made yearly by the Spanish River Abitibi and other companies to say nothing of "Brompton," whose last report shows profits of over $5,000,000 and also over fifty other Companies in Canada and United States all making big money, producing in wealth to these countries, hundreds of millions of dollars yearly, and yet our poverty stricken, narrow minded growlers, none of whom ever made a financial success of anything, and whose business records and ability would not qualify them to sit on the Board of a Bulls-Eye Shop, are attempting to stifle progress and clog the wheels of industry and employment.

If these dismal howlers were listened to nothing would ever be started, Water Street stores would be deserted, and our factories closed. Their cry is: "Don't invest a dollar in business, no matter how good the prospects, times might get worse and capital might be lost." Would such men as these ever have started Grand Falls or anything else, which requires capital? Would the Government have run any risk in the past twelve years had they guaranteed the Grand Falls Bonds?

We are now compelled to pay out hundreds of thousands of dollars for relief work, on which we are getting no returns. These conditions will obtain for years to come, as we are going through the hardest times financially in the world's history. We cannot continue giving out relief without returns, something constructive which will give relief and the return of money expended must be found. What else have we in Newfoundland which can be developed into National Employment excepting wood and power. We have these visible assets in abundance. In every direction we look for evidence of their value we see millions of dollars being made, and millions paid out for employment, yet the funeral group of Howlers and Growlers say "Hands off, do not attempt to develop these great resources, there may be one chance in a thousand of the business not being as profitable as it looks." They then say "There are many good points about the Humber, we want it, let us have all the good that is in it, we need the employment, many new industries will spring up around the power when developed, we need the extra traffic for the Railway, to wipe out the deficit; we want the West developed, we need the increased revenue." Then in the next breath they knock the whole project and attempt to kill it for political rather than business reasons, and ask for something for nothing. If there is anything we need badly to secure it we must pay for it. We need such a proposition as the Humber badly, which will give employment, increase the revenue, and lower our present rate of duties, and the only way to secure it under present financial conditions, is to put up something, in the form of guarantees to help it along.

Coming back to Wayagamack, it is well known that the stock market price is not always an index to the earning power of any company. C. P. R. is 124 to-day, ten years ago it was about double this figure, yet it is paying the same 10 per cent. dividend with the stock at 124 as when it was 244. The same applies to Union Pacific, and most of the seasoned 7 per cent. preferred stocks. Owing to so many Government Bonds paying 6 per cent on the market, investors will not buy industrials and this is why it is impossible to start new companies today unless the stock is almost given away. Money conditions make stock market prices, and not the intrinsic value of a stock.

The history of Wayagamack is that in 1917, the stock ranged from 97 down to 50, in 1918 the highest was 55, during 1919 it ranged 50 down to 45, in 1920 from 150 down to 71.

Wayagamack is not a large Company; they only manufacture "Kraft," or wrapping paper. Their assets amount to about $10,000,000. In their last statement issued for the 12 months, their profits were $2,152,707.17, what has Mr. Knocker in the "Telegram" to say to this? Would any Government have been called on to pay a cent had their Bonds been guaranteed? And this report represents one of the worse years on record in the pulp and paper business.

The paper business is sound wherever there is plenty wood and power, and basing one's opinion on the records of every company available, the Government will not run one chance in a thousand of ever being called upon to pay a cent; on the other hand we get much needed employment, an increase of a million or two yearly in our

NATIONALIZATION OR POOLING FISH

(By Observer)

WHAT NATIONALIZATION IS.

The first thing to do, in this series of articles on the subject of Nationalization, is explain what is meant by Nationalization, and to make plain to every reader what Nationalization is, and proposes to do.

It would not be very wise to go on writing about the subject if readers were not quite familiar with what Nationalization is.

PRONOUNCIATION

First, then, to get at the very pronounciation of the word. It is just as well to understand the thing in all its phases. It is pronounced "National-ization." As the first part of the word suggests, it is something of a national nature—not something local or provincial, or applicable only to one part of something.

Nationalization has to do with the great fishery of Newfoundland, and with nothing else. Indirectly, of course, many things in Newfoundland are concerned in Nationalization. Directly, however, Nationalization has to do with the cure of fish.

Nationalization, then, is first and foremost concerned with the exporting and marketing of fish. This is the first big fact that we should store up in our minds.

MORE THAN ONE KIND

Another thing that we should remember is this: that Nationalization in other countries means something quite different from Nationalization in Newfoundland. The principle back of it may be the same, but the application and working of that principle may be and mostly is something quite different from that in other countries.

To illustrate: in England, for a number of years, there has been going on a great agitation among certain people for Nationalization of the railroads of England. They say that the railroads of England are a great public utility, serving the whole people, and that for that reason they should be publicly owned and publicly operated. Now, during the Great War railroads were publicly operated,—or operated by the State, that is. Such was not Nationalization, however.

There is another big agitation going on in England for the Nationalization of the great coal mines of England. In some cases it is the same people who are fighting for both. Mostly, however, it is the coal miners of England who are fighting for Nationalization of the mines. They have had three big strikes already for Nationalization, and the probability is that they will have more as time goes on. They say that they will keep on striking every now and then until they get the mines Nationalized.

So, too, in United States and Canada—altho not so much in Canada. During the war the railroads of U. S. were publicly operated, altho not publicly owned.

This was not Nationalization of the railroads—it was public operation of them. Of course, even if they had been Nationalized, such Nationalization would not be like Nationalization in Newfoundland.

revenue, to say nothing of the increased Railway traffic, which will largely wipe out the present deficit, which is the heaviest financial burden we are under at the present time, with no other way of escape in sight.

No doubt some who object to the Humber are honest in their objections, but they are not broad minded business men; their vision is narrow no doubt through inexperience in big business matters. To these I want to say there is such a thing as being "Penny wise and Pound Foolish."

Yours very truly,

land. Railroads are railroads, and fish is fish; and publicly owning railroads is not much like publicly exporting fish.

IN RUSSIA

Then, too, they had Nationalization in Russia. Needless to say, Nationalization such as they had it in Russia is not the kind of Nationalization that is proposed for Newfoundland. There is very little difference between Nationalization as they had it in Russia, and as it is proposed in England. The only difference, in the main, is the matter of how many industries are Nationalized. In Russia they Nationalized all the industries in the country—every mine, every factory, every industrial concern; also they Nationalized all land, all railroads, all shops, all theatres, all schools, all ships, etc. This was of course a gigantic task. There has been a lot of failure there. If they had Nationalized only the great landed estates of Russia, and stopped at that, they might have made a better success of it.

In other countries, too, different plans of Nationalization are proposed. They are all different from Nationalization as it is proposed for Newfoundland.

Or rather, that is not quite correct. One or two cases are on record where other countries had Nationalization like it is meant here. Canada, for instance, during the war had a National Wheat Board, which marketed all the wheat crop, as well as all wheat by-products. Then there is the case of Australia's Wheat Pool, and New Zealand's Wool Pool. These may be described as Nationalization such as it is proposed in this country.

To get at it without any more introduction, Nationalization is something that has to do with the export and marketing of fish.

WHAT IT IS

It is a proposal—made by President Coaker—that all of Newfoundland's codfish be exported and marketed thru the one agency thru the one hands, as it were, instead of the present method.

That is to say, it is proposed that all the catch of codfish be exported and marketed by a National Board of Marketing Experts.

Of course, it would not be logical to attempt to describe here in this article, or in any other article, before the time comes for actually putting Nationalization in practice, what the plan would be like. It is possible to give the rough outlines, but no more.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN

Under Nationalization, how would things pan out?—how would the fishery proceed?

The fishermen would catch and cure fish as usual. So far as their work was concerned, there would be very little difference then and now. In returns, or the amount they got for their fish there would certainly be a difference—but, then, that's another story. That will come later.

The merchants would continue to supply the fishermen as usual.

The merchants would continue to buy fish from the fishermen. They would probably not buy fish from the fishermen as usual—altho they would continue to buy the fish.

The usual way is to buy from the fishermen for whatever you can get them to accept—and that is as little as you can bluff them to take. The usual way is for merchants to meet at the Board of Trade, or in their offices, or in their homes, and decide among themselves how much they will pay the fishermen for their fish.

That is the usual way. But that is not the way in which, under Nationalization, they would buy fish from the fishermen. They would buy from the fishermen at prices set by the National Board of Marketing Experts.

Then the National Board would buy from the merchants. The National Board would itself set the price at which the fish would be bought from the merchants. And the difference in the two prices would of course constitute the merchants' profit. This profit would be, say, 50 cents per quintal.

BOARD WOULD MARKET FISH

Then the National Board would have the entire catch of a million and a half quintals of codfish, and would do the exporting and marketing of it. The National Board would, thru its trade agents in the various markets, make outright sales, and would cut out forever the consignment system of selling this country's fish.

It might be asked, here,—and very justly, too—why the National Board would not buy the fish direct from the fishermen? On the face of it, that might seem like a reasonable question.

The reason why the National would be men of very great knowledge and experience in marketing.

The Board would be appointed by a committee of the exporters, and the Government, and would be removed only by a two-third's vote of such committee.

Such, then, is the Nationalization proposal. In this article it has been possible to give only the salient features. Experience is the great teacher, and the details of the proposal of Nationalization would have to be worked out. Nothing is perfect when it is first tried out. Every great invention was crude in its infancy, but grew and blossomed and came to serve man to stupendous degree.

The main thing is to make a beginning. The wrongs of many generations are not wiped out in the twinkling of an eye.

In All Tongues,
To All Nations

Bible Society Issues Scriptures in 543 Languages.

The British and Foreign Bible Society has issued, under the title of "Good-will to All Men," its annual report for the year 1920-21. The volume is replete with interesting facts regarding the work of the society and the dissemination of the Scriptures throughout the world.

During the past twelve months, according to the report, ten new languages have been added to the list of those in which the society has published or circulated the Scriptures. This means that a version in some fresh form of speech has appeared about once every five weeks.

ISSUED BY MILLIONS

For the year ending 1920-21 the books issued by the society numbered 8,655,781. These were made up of 501,796 Bibles, 727,307 New Testaments, and 7,126,678 smaller portions containing not less than one complete book of Scripture.

Since its foundation in 1804 the Bible Society has issued over 319,470,000 copies of the Scriptures. Of these nearly 100,000,000 have been in English.

The ten new languages which the society has added to its list during the past year are as follows:

Cape Dutch, or Afrikaans, a vernacular current among a million and a half people in South Africa. Unable to follow the classical Dutch Bible, the society prepared and printed a version of the Bible in Afrikaans.

Venda, the speech of a tribe in the Northern Transvaal, for whom were printed the four Gospels and the Acts. This is the book in this language.

Papo, one of the languages of Tetoland, on the West African coast, into which the Gospel of St. Mark has been translated.

INTO FAR NORTH NIGERIA

Tangale, the speech of 50,000 negroes living on the uplands of Northern Nigeria. They have been given St. Luke's Gospel, translated by a missionary of the Sudan Interior Mission of Toronto.

St. Matthew's Gospel has been printed in the Ituri dialect of Loggion Congo, and St. Luke's Gospel in Songi, the speech of a tribe south of the Belgian Congo, and the same Gospel in Ngandu, the tongue of a tribe south of the Congo.

Seven of the shorter epistles of the New Testament have been translated into Chokwe, the tongue of a million people in Portuguese West Africa.

The Hamars are a small tribe in the hills of Assam, who have received St. Mark's Gospel in Hamar, and tribe-men of the Bismarck Archipelago, east of New Guinea, have received St. John's Gospel in Patparta.

This now completes a total of 543 different languages in which at least some part of the Holy Scripture has been published or circulated by the Bible Society. More than 160 of these versions have been issued since the present century began.

Calls Himself The Richest Man

Nebraskan Blacksmith Has Not Much Money, But Is Contented and Happy

OMAHA, Neb.—Here is the story of a fellow who claims to be the richest man in the world, but he is only a poor blacksmith living at Clarks, Nebraska. He hasn't any money to speak of, but some few years ago when he wrote a letter telling why he considered himself the richest man in the world, he struck a note of such contentment and good cheer that his letter has gone all over the world.

It has been translated into many languages and men of half a hundred nationalities have written this country blacksmith thanking him for adding a ray of sunshine to their lives. Preachers of all denominations have commented on the letter. Editors of all classes of newspapers have editorialized on it. Hundreds of news stands throughout the country are offering embossed copies for sale. It has been printed on post cards and in "house" magazines. Big business houses have circulated it among their employees as a sample of contentment.

WROTE TO EDITOR.

This rich man's name is Edward J. Meyers. It has been two or three years since he wrote his famous "Hymn of Thankfulness." When it first appeared this "hymn" started something of a ripple. The waves have grown higher and higher since that time and now they are meeting on the far side of the earth.

Meyers wrote his letter to the editor of the Norfolk (Neb.) News in answer to an editorial in that paper by Eugene House. Here is the letter—the one that brought him the name "Richest Man on Earth."

"I wonder if you know that one of the richest men in the world was fourteen miles north of Norfolk, right here in Pierce county. That man is the writer. I am just a common plug blacksmith, but oh! how rich.

"I go to my labors each morning, work until noon, go to dinner, return at 1 p.m., and work until 6 o'clock. I enjoy the greatest of all blessings, good health.

"Rockefeller would give all he possesses in money and holdings for my stomach, but he can't have it.

"Each day sees something accomplished and every job of work I turn out I feel I have done my customer a service worthy of my hire.

"I have a wonderful little wife. She has stuck to me for twenty-two years so I know she must have been a dandy to accomplish that.

"I have a little home, a beautiful little daughter, a son grown to maturity and now in life's game for himself.

"Rich? Why man alive who can possibly be richer?

"Then, to add to all the above riches, I take my old shotgun in seasons, and ramble through fields, woods and tangle in search of the elusive cottontail, teal and mallard, with my faithful pointer at heel, (now past 11 years of age), and he is as happy as I when on the hunt. Then, when I get back, how good everything does taste.

"Then when night has spread its mantle over this good old universe, I settle down in a good old easy chair, enjoy a smoke, and then roll into bed and never hear a sound until the beautiful break of another day.

"Rich, did you say? Well, I guess. Dollars? Not many. You inquired about riches, not material wealth.

"The height of my ambition is to so live that I may have no regrets for having lived, when the time comes for me to shuffle off this mortal coil, and I hope by that time to have accumulated just enough dollars that myself and mine may not be objects of charity.

"This, then, is my ideal of a rich man. If anyone enjoys life more than I do, he is to be envied for his riches.

"With kindest regards,

EDWARD J. MEYERS."

Meyers' Hymn of Thankfulness is continuing to spread and the letters of appreciation and thanks for his note of good cheer continue to roll in on him. And Meyers, himself, is going right along in his usual manner, doing a good day's work every twenty-four hours, giving a dollar's worth of service for every 100 cents he takes in and singing the Hymn of Thankfulness of the Richest Man in the World

Should Change Players Only
When Game Is Suspended

(Halifax Herald.)

At a special meeting of the City hockey league yesterday at the Queen hotel, the protest of Wanderers over the Dalhousie game, was not allowed. Dalhousie won the game, three to two, but it was alleged that they had seven players on the ice during the last few minutes of the final period.

President A. C. Wiswell, Vice-President Walter Bishop, Secretary H. O. Crosby and M. P. Martin, James LeClair, S. Smith and R. C. McDonald representing the clubs, were present. After a lengthy discussion, Stanley Smith, Wanderers, made a motion that the game be replayed, but this did not carry. Walter Bishop then moved that the protest be thrown out, which was seconded by M. P. Martin of the Crescents. Smith urged that two boxes for players be provided at the Arena Rink and steps will be taken by the league executive to have this matter fixed up.

While discussing the protest, it was pointed out, that the rule governing changes should be made clear and an amendment to the rule was made. Hereafter, change of players can be made only when play is suspended. When the referee blows his whistle for a face-off, a relief can be made, but the player who is relieved, must be off the ice before another player goes on.

Evening Clothes at Royal Wedding

Chamberlain's Edict.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(United News)—Scripture is being quoted in London to show that the Lord Chamberlain made a serious mistake in deciding that women invited to the wedding of Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles must wear evening gowns. But parenthetically, the court dress-makers were never so grateful to a court official as to the court Chamberlain right now, for with the official regulations definitely known to society, there has begun a healthy rush of business.

The chamberlain's decree said the women must wear court gowns without trails or feathers. The last word eliminates all semblance of head-dress which is a most unusual thing at weddings by the Episcopalian ritual.

Certain commentators hold that the decision is directly contrary to St. Paul's Epistle to the Corinthians quoting therefrom: "Judge in yourselves, is it comely that women pray unto God uncovered?" And further, "But every woman that prayeth or prophesieth with her head uncovered dishonoureth her head."

However the critics are forced to admit that there exist abundant precedents for this decree and usage probably governed the council in Buckingham Palace which gave forth this momentous decision. Extreme evening dress will not be tolerated of course, for it is well known that Queen Mary still holds her old prejudice against extreme décolleté.

Society women who have been informally notified that they may expect invitations to the wedding have withheld until now their purchases of gowns for the occasion, awaiting the decree.

Heath Hints.

Nurse says a bag for an invalid will give her lots of pleasure, besides being of great service. Make it of pretty material, with long drawstrings so that it may hang on the bed post, yet be readily drawn in to the bed by the patient, without raising herself.

In the bag may be kept her handkerchief, a pencil, a pad of paper and anything else that she may wish to use and yet not like to call on anyone else to get for her. Sometimes a little surprise may be slipped into the bag and the happiness such a gift will bring may make many weary hours pass more pleasantly.

Do not allow more visitors to visit the patient than can be helped. When a child is ill let those who come stay but a short time. On no account allow any noisy people to come into the sick room. Cheerfulness is essential, but not excitement and the accompanying fatigue. Should the patient express a wish to see any one individual, by all means let them come in.

Pastor Burglar Has
His Religious Code

Yes Sir, a World-Roving Criminal—WHI Study in Jail.

San Jose, Cal., Jan. 24.—In the complex personality of the Rev. Max Hascall have lived for some years both a preacher and a burglar.

But the spiritual life came first—was rooted at the cradle by a clergyman father. And so, though he has followed a life of crime for eight years according to his own admissions, Hascall declares he applied a self-created code to his operations.

Hascall is now in jail here awaiting trial.

While playing the crook in many quarters of the globe he has, at the same time, sought to retain his scholarly training, to broaden his philosophy and follow all new theological movements.

As to his career of "high principled" crime, Hascall says:

"I have never perpetrated a 'stick-up' job. I have never used a gun. I avoided hold-ups because they involved guns, and because women and children might also be involved. I have had scores of chances to make much money from working confidence schemes on women, but have always refused to take such an unfair advantage. I am a firm believer in the righteousness of women and children. I have played a game of wits with men and have selected for robbery such places as could afford to lose. Yes, I have been a world-roving criminal; I have been in London, Paris, Liverpool and Australia, but I don't know but that I welcome jail as a chance to study."

Hascall had occupied the pulpit for seven years. Grief over death of his family led him away from the church, he says.

A PROVERB

BY WALTER WELLMAN

Miss Pert is worried about her fiancé, but she's foolish. There's an old proverb that covers the case. The proverb consists of five words. If you change one letter in the name of each object, and also one letter in the word in the frame, you will have the proverb, provided you put the new words in the right order. What is it?
Answer to Saturday's puzzle: GRIMMAR (Objects—egg, rabbit, bat, hammer, match, barrel, gear.)

Five Buildings On Water Street Swept By Flames

Extensive Business Block Is Guttred By Fire

$100,000 Damage Is Done In Early Morning Blaze

Insurance Carried Is About $85,000

Over one hundred thousand dollars damage is estimated to have been caused by fire which broke out yesterday morning in the block of office and warehouse buildings on Water St., opposite Ayre & Sons West End building.

The fire was first discovered at 7 o'clock by Sergt. R. O'Keefe and Const. Conway who had been on night duty and whose attention was attracted by a burst of flame thru the barber shop of T. H. Garland on the ground floor of the Cabot Building. An alarm was sent in at once from the box at the foot of McBride's Hill.

HAD MADE MUCH HEADWAY.

The fire must have had a considerable start before being discovered as when the firemen from the Central and Western Stations reached the scene the flames had spread thruout the three or four buildings adjacent to that in which the fire is believed to have originated. The fire had also burned its way thru to the rear and dense volumes of smoke were pouring out thru the back windows near the Daily News building.

The firemen were confronted with a stiff proposition, but under the direction of Capt. Windsor and Treble with the Inspector General and Supt. Dunne also looking after matters, they soon had nine splendid streams of water playing on the fire, five from Water Street and four from Duckworth Street.

The ground floor premises occupied by Bon Marche, Innes & Co., Bert Hayward and Roper & Thompson were all visited by the flames, the last named, however, escaping without serious damage by fire the suffering greatly from water. The Bon Marche store building as well as that adjoining occupied by R. Innes & Co., who carried in both places stock which they value at $50,000.

The upper floors of Cabot Bldg. were given up to offices, all of which were completely gutted. Garland's barber shop and Hayward's office and warerooms were completely devastated while the flames also made their way thru the back and reached the coachhouse at the rear of Dr. Rendell's former residence and destroyed a valuable brougham that was stored there.

At Roper & Thompson's the flames entered at the top flat sweeping thru the adjoining building, and considerable damage was caused by the torrents of water which flooded the place. A very valuable stock was carried by this firm, while in their workroom on the top flat were fifty chronometers, valued at $10,000. These were being repaired, and shortly after the outbreak Mr. E. Roper was on the scene and in endeavoring to save this property had a narrow escape from being suffocated by the dense smoke which filled the premises, while flame was spouting thru the adjoining partitions cutting off his retreat. In this predicament he was found by Mr. James Boggan, an ex-fireman, who was early on the scene and rendered valuable assistance in combating the flames. Mr. Loggan led Mr. Roper to safety, and later was successful, with Mr. Roper, in removing the valuable instruments. Never was greater work done by the firemen but it was not till after nine o'clock that the flames were completely subdued and it was after 12 noon that the last of the firemen left the scene.

The estimated damage was in the vicinity of $100,000 while about $85,000 insurance was carried.

THE DAMAGED BUILDINGS.

"Cabot Building," which was completely gutted, is owned by Mr. Bert Hayward, who, with Mr. T. H. Garland, occupied the ground floor. Mr. Garland's shop is totally destroyed, the only article saved being a razor. He is only partly covered and the loss to him is a serious one, as it will be some time before he can resume business.

The fire was first seen in the barber shop, which adjoins the furnace room, situated at the rear, and it is generally believed the fire started in this section, and was evidently smoldering all night. On the second and top flats were suites of offices which were rented by Messrs. G. D. Shears & Son, T. J. Freeman, and the St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd., C. J. Adway, F. Hamlin, Robert Miller, Walter E. White, Willis Dav's and E. J. Brown. All these offices have been gutted and valuable books and records destroyed. The office furniture, etc., are in a sorry all cases insured, but the loss of books, samples, etc., is a serious one.

The St. George's Coal Fields in particular are big losers in this connection, much valuable data being consumed in the flames. It is understood that $14,000 insurance is carried on the building, while the insurance carried by the tenants, on stock, etc., will be in the vicinity of another $10,000. The building is so badly damaged that it will require to be rebuilt.

R. E. Innes & Co.

The two buildings immediately west of Cabot Building, are owned respectively by R. E. Innes & Co., and Mr. Dugald Munn while the business in both is conducted by Innes & Co. The firm carried an extensive stock of dry goods, which Mr. Innes values at over $50,000. It is insured for $30,000, including $3,000 on the building and fixtures. All the stock has been so badly burnt and damaged by water, that it is almost valueless, and the firm are heavy losers.

In the Innes Building, Messrs. Gordon Phillips and H. B. Chafe had their offices, which also suffered in the general devastation, though Mr. Chafe's office is not so badly damaged as the others.

Roper & Thompson's.

At Roper & Thompson's a very valuable stock of jewelry was on hand, and it is impossible to estimate their loss. The building was flooded with water, while the fire also occasioned some damage. Their store is in a bad state and it will be some days before they can resume business. They have insurance to the extent of $15,000, while the building, which is owned by other parties, is insured for $9,000.

BLUNDER IN FUNERAL

An embarrassing blunder occurred in connection with the funeral of Pte. Young, sometime Forester, who died at the Sanitarium. The funeral was scheduled to take place from Oke's mortuary rooms at seven o'clock yesterday morning, to proceed thence to the station. When the G.W.V.A. representatives arrived they found that the body had been taken to the station at ten o'clock, three mourners only accompanying. The express people at the station are stated to have 'phoned to have the body sent up at that time, so as to get it placed on the express in time. It is stated by the aggrieved mourners that there was no necessity for the hurry, as the body had not been placed on the train even after they had eventually arrived at the station by cab.

Taking New Offices

The Newfoundland Industrial Workers' Association executive has taken rooms in the Phillips' Bldg., 310 Water Street, and removal was made to-day.

Prospero Still Jammed

The Government coastal steamer Prospero is still jammed, according to word received by the shipping department here. She is in the same place as when, two weeks or more ago, she was caught in the ice. A couple of days ago she was reported as butting her way out of the ice, but this seems to have been ill-founded.
